Warlock Pvp Guide - Dont Throw Away Any Time Getting To Max Level

Leveling a Warlock is easy. Their Demon Pets help out a lot but they also get a large variety of damage, fear and AoE spells helping to level them rapidly. The Warlocks Life Tap spell allows health to be turned into mana which allows casting without breaks. If you get low on health you can just use the Drain Life spell. The Demon pet helps by tanking and taking damage while you regenerate life and do damage. Please continue reading the rest of this destruction warlock pvp guide for more tips.

Two bonus abilities you learn are Create Healthstone and Create Soulstone. A Soulstone will resurrect you if you are to die during a fight while the Healthstone will restore your health if you are getting low.

The tree you want to start with in order level quickly is the Affliction tree. My best WoW guide has more info, keep reading!

With this build you can learn new spells as well as increase your DoT spells. The first thing you get is Improved Curse of Agony. Mana will increase with Suppression and Improved Drain Soul. Health and mana levels will be better sustained with Soul Siphon and Improved Life Tap.

Amplify Curse and Fel Concentration will increase your casting speed and ability. Your range and spell damage will be also be increased. The Curse of Exhaustion is a good choice if you are part of a PvP realm. You will also get Siphon Life and Shadow Mastery.

Unstable Affliction and Haunt are two other great damage spells and improving your Felhunter will help with Dark Pact.

After you get to Northrend its a good idea to switch your talent tree to a Demonology Affliction mix.

This build is all about the Felguard and Siphon Life abilities. You can improve your Demon Pets while you use your DoTs for damage. As stated earlier, your Affliction build will give you health gains as well as let you convert mana, meaning there is no down time for a warlock.
